CIRCOR Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update

Over the last several weeks, the world has faced one of the most challenging times in our history. There is one thing that has not changed: CIRCOR's continued commitment to our employees and their families, our customers, and our shareholders. As a global supplier of essential products and services, we stand ready to meet the critical needs of our customers in the medical equipment, food processing, power generation, energy and defense sectors through our manufacturing and engineering expertise in mission-critical applications.

Our valued employees are following stringent personal safety procedures and protocols and we are thankful to them as we continue to meet the demand for flow control products throughout the course of the COVID-19 pandemic.

We appreciate your patience during this very challenging period and would like to provide you with an update on the additional steps we are taking to protect our employees and provide reliable products and solutions.

- Additional cleaning and disinfecting procedures at all facilities;
- Daily temperature checks and masks for employees;
- Adherence to strict social distancing guidelines;
- Mandatory work from home policy where possible; and
- Cancellation of all non-essential travel.

CIRCOR continues to monitor disruptions in our Supply Chain, which has caused unique challenges to the continued delivery of the highly-engineered products that our customers depend on. We are committed to a positive customer experience and working aggressively to ensure that you have the products and services to help you meet your business-critical demands during these difficult times.

CIRCOR will continue to keep you updated with the latest information available, as well as, the impact of this outbreak on our operations worldwide.
